This volume is divided into four sections: DT appraising the impact of globalization on the state-market relationship in the global economy in a historical perspective, focusing on the experiences of India and China; DT analyzing the global capital managers who are not always transparent players, thereby threatening financial stability of the contries they operate in; DT describing key aspects of macroeconomic policymaking in India's financial sector reforms; and DT providing a broad overview of Corporate Governance systems and the collapse of some of the corporate giants like Eron.
